Individuals become Teams

The goals of the Getaway Adventures Teambuilding Challenges are to increase cooperation, respect, communication and trust within a group. An important concept utilized during our teambuilding exercises is that of clear communication between individuals for the good of the team. This concept shows participants how much more effective it is for them to work together rather than work as individuals. Participants are often challenged to go beyond their personal comfort zones, try new activities, discover new ways of thinking, and deal with surprise issues that come up. Team members have the opportunity to give and accept help and support from other members of the group. When challenges are structured in this fashion, individuals become teams and strangers become friends. By being given the choice to succeed, participants will increase self-awareness and awareness of others, improve self-image, gain respect for their peers, and begin to acquire powerful leadership skills. Most importantly, participants will also HAVE FUN!

Road Rally

Teams compete in a relay race, passing an object from one racer to the next. The object can represent a product from the company, and must be handled with care and safely delivered to the end location ahead of the other teams. This is a high energy, fun activity which requires precise communication and coordination between team members.
